Dear Lucia

Tho' Anne seems rather better this morning it is out of the question, our coming in. She had really a sick day, yesterday and was only up, for a few minutes at a time, all day. "She had mustard seed poultices on her legs, was rubbed & bathed, took medicine, had several different kinds of gargles and in short compressed as many remedies into one day as moderate people spread through a fever. But she is really better this morning and thinks of sitting up by & bye in a while morning gown."

She thinks she shall not be able to go to Exeter till Tuesday the 5th of July. "If she is well enough I think we will bring us in Saturday. ~~As~~ This is arranged to your mind say so and Anne will write to the Dr tomorrow, write to night all the news, and send out the 3^d S^t Asblay. We have seen nothing of Warren yet. Aunt Pric & Mary have been very poorly something in the way that Anne was seen. "If you have any special desire to be there at the Pic Nic why perhaps I might manage it to go up Saturday, coming in town on ~~Saturday~~ ^{Friday}. But I am very weak at present, and do not think I should venture to go to the P. M. after I got there. I think on the whole we had better go up next Tuesday "

I charge you, in the names of more saints than I can remember to get D'Arblay for us, if not it is impossible, if you have any thing else send Fowler is here delivering Phrenological lectures.
Mrs Rolie is sick. Tell me how much you gave for that Muslim edging you sent me ever yrs Emma
